Partner Michael Wise joined Lawrence Kamin in 1989. His practice centers on the financial services industry, encompassing compliance, transaction and litigation matters.

Michael counsels brokers, advisers, derivatives market participants and funds. He regularly handles compliance issues, complex transactions and enforcement inquiries. He has been active in helping clients respond to new requirements mandated by the Dodd Frank Act. Michael's litigation activities include arbitrations before securities and futures exchanges, and appearing on behalf of investment professionals in disciplinary proceedings. Michael also advises officers and directors in corporate and employment related matters, including internal investigations, and regularly represents professionals, such as accountants and other attorneys working in the financial services area.

In addition to serving as a seminar panelist for various industry association events, Michael has co-authored articles on financial services issues with Paul Uhlenhop, including "Managing Regulatory Investigations," published in The Review of Securities and Commodities Regulation and "Regulatory Examinations For Cause."

When not spending time with his family, Michael can be found bike-riding throughout the Chicagoland area.
